

Additive Manufacturing Trade Mission France-Germany-Poland

Meet with qualified partners, gain exposure in Europe, and attend Formnext all as part of an Official US Dept of Commerce Trade Mission

The European Union (EU) is a leader in additive manufacturing (AM) and an important partner in the development of standards and innovative technologies. The Trade Mission will take you to three European markets to directly connect your company with potential customers/partners, discuss standards and policy, and participate in Europe's largest AM industry trade show, Formnext. The European AM market is experiencing 15-20% annual growth. EU firms are highly interested in American AM products.

Who Should Participate?

Companies with 51% US content that have products or services applicable to the additive manufacturing industry.

What to Expect

France is home to approximately 200 AM companies and a cluster for materials research and product development. Participants will attend a seminar on the market from industry experts and have the opportunity to visit several sites.

Germany is the largest economy in the EU and the leader in AM demand in Europe. Participants will have access to Formnext, special events on standards and developments in the industry, and opportunities to present their technology to potential buyers and partners.

Poland is a growing manufacturing power in Europe, where the AM market counts over 200 companies. Participants will have site visits and meetings with industry associations and business partners.

At each stop, participants will:

- Learn About the Latest AM Market Developments
- Attend Site visits (in Germany: Formnext)
- Have B2B meetings with potential customers
- Have networking opportunities
